Flood Control District Stirs Controversy

By Elizabeth Cowley

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors received testimony regarding the proposed Carmel River flood assessment zone on July 9, as required prior to making a decision next week. The zone would collect $326,000 (see chart) annually from property owners throughout the Carmel River basin to fund flood control activities to be carried out by the Monterey County Water Resources Agency (MCWRA). Mike Armstrong, MCWRA General Manager, said as currently proposed there is no limit on future assessment increases or a sunset clause. Armstrong said most of the money would go towards channelization projects he defined as river channel "maintenance", not channel rerouting which could damage habitat.

Proposed Flood Control Assessment by Parcel:

Annual charge to the 1,595 parcels within the 100 year flood plain:
- vacant parcels - $19.18
- residential parcels - $76.72
- business parcels - $153.44
- agricultural parcels - $38.36.

Annual charge to the 6,554 parcels outside 100 year flood plain but within the Carmel River Basin:
- vacant parcels - $9.59
- residential parcels - $38.36
- business parcels - $76.72
- agricultural parcels - $19.18

Supervisor Sam Karas asked Armstrong to clarify why people who do not live within the 100 year flood plain should contribute to flood

Water Allocation Hearings Continue

Water Allocation Public Hearings Highlight July 15, 1996 Water Board Meeting.

At its July 15, 1996 meeting, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) Board of Directors will hold a public hearing on the initial environmental review and first reading of Ordinance No. 84, which would allocate 150 acre-feet (AF) of water due from the operation of CAWD/PBCSD Wastewater Reclamation Project. The 150 AF would be split evenly for use by the eight jurisdictions (cities and county areas) within the District as recommended by the Policy Advisory Committee; each jurisdiction would receive 18.75 AF. Some jurisdictions presently have no water to allocate for remodels and new construction projects, and others are near their limit. This proposed action stems from a request by five local mayors to allocate some of the potable water being offset by use of reclaimed water for irrigation.

The reclamation project is designed to save 800 acre-feet of potable water each year by watering golf courses and other open space areas in Del Monte Forest with reclaimed wastewater from the Carmel/Pebble Beach area. A total of 380 AF is reserved for use by the project's fiscal sponsors, and the remaining 420 AF is slated for use by MPWMD. The 150 AF represents a portion of the 420 AF District share. The remaining amount would go toward conservation savings.

In a related item, a public hearing will be held on requests by the Cal-Am Rate Payers Group (CARP) to consider its proposals to impose a moratorium on water connections for

Red Cross Would Like To Save Your Car

The Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey County and Santa Cruz County chapters of the American Red Cross have announced a joint program whereby residents can contribute to their local Red Cross chapter through the donation of a used car or other vehicle.

The program is part of a statewide American Red Cross fund raising campaign. Contributors of vehicles may call a toll free number for information and to make arrangements for pick-up. The proceeds after expenses are credited to the donors' local American Red Cross chapter as determined by their zip code. Donors receive a tax write-off based on the fair market value of the vehicle. Funds received by the local chapter are used to support local disaster relief and other Red Cross services.

Western Auto Liquidators, a licensed appraisal firm, administers the program, handling details of pick-up, title transfer and auctioning of the vehicle. Western Auto also pays for licenses, fees and federal and state taxes. The Red Cross receives half of the auction price of each vehicle. Further information can be obtained by calling 1-888-2redcross

CHS Class of '46 Plans 50th Reunion

by Kate Rayne

The 1946 class, from Carmel High School, of approximately 60 students, was the first class to graduate who started high school at the newly constructed campus at the top of Ocean Avenue on Highway 1. Previously, students had to travel over the hill to Monterey High for part of their high school years.

On Sunday, September 15, 1996 at Historic Robles del Rio Lodge in Upper Carmel Valley they will celebrate their 50th Reunion. Fun starts at 2 p.m., dinner at 6:30. A band will play music from the '40s.

Almost a third of the Class of '46 remained here, or have returned to reside in Carmel or nearby.

The Reunion Committee has contacted classmates in twelve states, Canada and Australia, and notes they cover a wide range of careers including attorneys, physicians, golfers, Ph.Ds, teachers, city council members, judges, artists, law enforcement, and business women, locally and internationally.

Flippo Presses On After Deadbeat Parents

District Attorney Dean Flippo announced that the Family Support Division, for the first time in the history of Monterey County, surpassed 2 million dollars in child support collections in a single month. The division collected in excess of 16 million dollars over the past fiscal year.

The division has established over 6800 court orders; located over 10,000 non-supporting parents and their assets; and utilized the Franchise Tax Board (FTB) Full Collection Program which collected $1,097,669. Based upon the increased collections and performance in the areas of establishing child support obligations and paternity, it is anticipated that Monterey County will be well above both the state and national averages in those categories. The fiscal year 94/95 average amount collected per case, nationally, was $530, and in California was $380.

Based on the fiscal year 95/96 figures, Monterey County's average collection, per case, is $598.

YOUR WORLD & MINE
Araby Colton

What price that steak?

You probably eat meat, if you can afford today's prices, that is. Most Americans do. We have about thirty-million vegetarians, and another five hundred thousand vegans (they're the ones who don't eat anything from animals, like milk or eggs.) Me, I'm a vegetarian, except when I'm invited out to dinner, when I eat everything on my plate as I was taught.

But meat eating is not typically human as most of the world's people are vegetarians. It's only us affluent First Worlders who have adopted the steak and potatoes routine.

It's not even kind to our innards. Says the University of California at Berkeley, in their "Wellness Letter", March, 1993:

"The human taste for meat is totally out of kilter with a physiology designed for vegetarianism. Our tooth structure (small canines, powerful molars), our enzymes for digestion, and our twenty-six feet of intestines, are all characteristic of herbivores, not carnivores. Meat eating produces intense acids in the stomach. Because of the length of our intestines, nine days are required to digest a hamburger. During that time the deoxycholic acid produced by the stomach to help in digestion is converted by clostridia bacteria in the intestine into toxins alleged to be carcinogenic. With the meat remaining so long in the intestines, that sustained toxicity, and the animal fats that stay solid at 98.6 degrees - clog up, and lengthen the duration necessary to pass through the colon. During that extended transit time the bowel walls absorb the toxins which the body has been trying to expel."

So, it's no wonder that medical research seems almost unanimous that a meat diet means a higher risk of osteoporosis and coronary artery disease, higher blood pressure and high cholesterol, more digestive system diseases like diverticulosis, poor internal maintenance of blood sugar, and higher risk of lung and breast cancer.

Of course there's the worldwide desertification caused by all those billions of animals who keep us in steaks and chops and hamburgers.

Said the President's Council on Environmental Quality in 1981:

"Improvident pasturage, or "over-grazing," as it has come to be known, has been the most potent desertification force in terms of total acreage affected, within the United States."

And it's not just happening in the United States. Says Jack D. Johnson, Director of the Office of Arid Land Studies at the University of Arizona:

"I don't care if they're talking about Arizona or sub-Saharan Africa ... there are very few arid lands today that are not being grazed beyond their carrying capacity."

We're cutting down the rainforests by one or two percent a year - they'll all be gone in fifty years or less - to make room for the cattle which feed our American food chains and pets. Every hamburger you ate at McDonald's is estimated to have destroyed five square meters - that's fifteen square feet of forest.

Yes, indeed, that steak is jolly expensive.

LETTERS to the Editor

Former Teacher Defends CHS's Poor Performance

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

I am writing you in regard to your editorial in the June 13 issue of "The Carmel Valley Sun" concerning Carmel High School. First, may I congratulate you on the excellent records your five children have achieved at CHS. You are rightly proud of them. Further, may I say that no institution exists which cannot be improved, and some points you make have merit.

However, as a former elementary school teacher in the Carmel system (23 years); as a mother and grandmother of CHS graduates; as a volunteer at the Career Center, dive team, president of the Music Boosters and as a worker for the passage of two parcel taxes, I've been doing things as long ago as 34 years, and as recently as 6 years, I feel that you have been extremely cavalier in some of your statements. I suggest that you did not check your information before writing the editorial or else were severely misinformed.

First, the physical plant is run down. It was run down 20 years ago. It is 50 years old. However, about 20 years ago, something happened to CUSD - Proposition 13 and the Priest-Serrano decision of 1976. We were at that time one of the 30 "wealthy" districts and were not allowed to use all the income from property taxes earmarked for schools, a goodly portion had to be sent to Sacramento for equalization. When we achieved "basic aid" status and could use more property tax money for schools in our district several lean years had passed, and we were behind in maintenance. The Board of Trustees made a conscious decision in those years to put money into program, not buildings. However, in recent years the district has put an enormous amount in repairs - pavement at Middle School, heating

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

I think the Russians made several serious mistakes, starting with converting from communism to democracy in one quick jump. Gorbachev could have gotten himself killed, trying to talk about moderation. Then, there was Chechnya, with Yeltsin trying to get into the history books as the second Abraham Lincoln, trying to keep the "union" intact. I don't know how many died in Chechnya. America's Civil War was terribly expensive (about 500,000 lives), but it looks glorious in the history books.

And, now we have Yeltsin's successful re-election campaign, engineered by a team of American election campaign experts, who were temporarily out of work, because Pres. Clinton is, for all practical purposes, running unopposed. From America's anti-communist viewpoint, the Yeltsin win was an American victory. The Russian economy is a mess, and getting worse by the minute, and the same guy who got it to happen won the election, meaning that an awful lot of Russians are heading into a long, (maybe unending), period of economic and criminal turmoil.

Sure, it's great news. We'll finally be rid of the Russian commie threat, and we can concentrate on China, where almost all of our shoes are made, and on North Korea, where a lot of the people are running out of food. But what, pray tell, will our Pentagon do for prospective targets, if the North Koreans are hungry, and we need China to build our shoes, (and Boeing is going to build airplanes in China), and those bad Russians are swamped with crime and economics problems? Wouldn't it be awful, if we had to lay off a lot of National Security project designers? We've got to have faith, and occasionally display our patriotism by sending letters to the Pentagon, suggesting new places to send U.S. troops.

system at Tularcitos, etc. The lottery money, such as it is, may not be used for the physical plant either. Two parcel tax tries have been defeated. Such a tax required a 2/3 majority, and people in the district seem to feel that they pay big property taxes already - which I can understand because the tax rate is comparatively low but the assessed valuation is high.

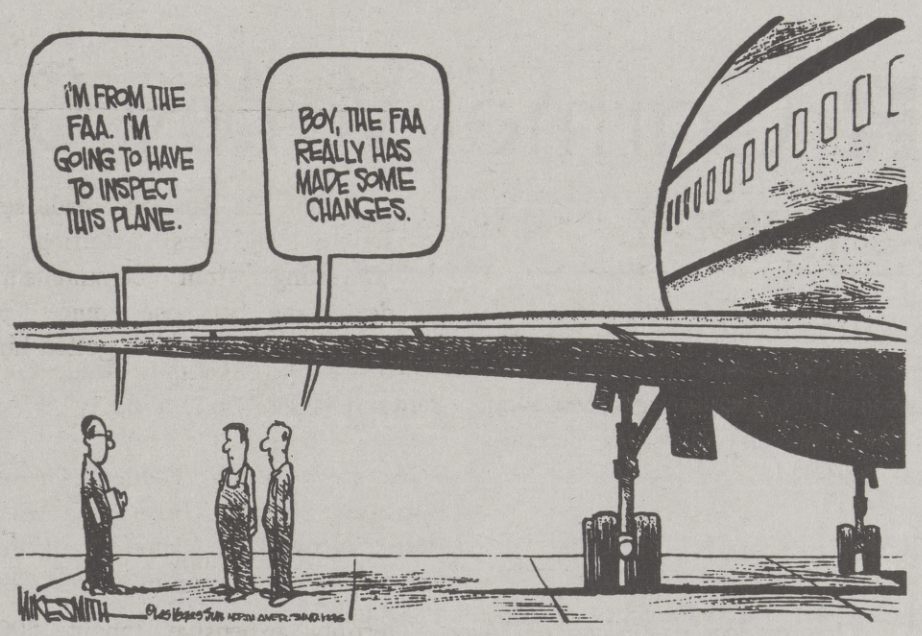

The Carmel School Board's strategic plan, discussed at this month's meeting, addresses the situation and, barring any disasters, will refurbish the schools. Up to now only very basic needs have been able to be funded.

Regarding one suggestion, Direct Support - it's already here. FOCUS, Friends of Carmel Unified Schools, was formed in the wake of Priest-Serrano. For example, this group last year raised over $125,000, including the Parents Clubs, in direct grants to teachers and schools. Concerning computers, FOCUS gave Captain Cooper (not Captain Kidd)) $18,000 for computers, et al, for the 80 students. FOCUS also started Scrip for CUSD. One buys Scrip to use like money - use it in a variety of stores such as Safeway and Costco. $30,000 was raised last year by CUSD's percentage. ATT gave a grant to CUSD - and all this is volunteer help. There is a lot of fund raising and volunteerism. Just ask.

Regarding the statement, "children are graduated who have actually read less than 12 books in their academic life" - not so. Just the regular 9th grade English class list requires 14, honors English 25. That is one year.

Another statement, "They (the graduates) know a lot about AIDS, condoms..." I hope so, because AIDS education is now state-mandated.

Regarding, "A pathetic few of this year's class...even bothered to apply to the best colleges." Again, not so. For example, the class valedictorian applied to Harvard, Yale and Stanford. He was accepted at two of the three. Fifty plus members of a class of 136 are going to 4 year colleges; such schools as Stanford, UC Berkeley, UC Santa Barbara, Amherst, UC Davis, UCLA, UC Irvine, Notre Dame, Duke, Santa Clara, Vassar, University of Colorado, University of Washington, and other highly regarded schools. To be sure, many opt for junior or community colleges since expenses are constantly increasing and college grants are drying up. Two years in a community college and then transferring is a way to lower college costs for middle income parents. Especially since most state schools are so crowded that five years has superseded the usual four. Of course, if one is a low income parent or of a particular ethnic group, it is still much easier to get a grant and needs-based scholarship money.

Another thing that CHS should be congratulated for is the fact that while it has only 630 students (about half of the highest enrollment years ago), it still has an excellent music department. This is something that most schools of that size have had to abandon. As a matter of fact, from my own experience, the community support has been wonderful. It is a tribute to all staff, teachers, administrators, students, and parents that a school of that size can offer such a varied program - honors classes, award winning student newspapers, advanced math and sciences courses. It is able to compare favorably with larger schools.

CUSD has another big problem - its size. It is the size of Rhode Island and has a K-12 enrollment of 2376. I've served on one or two committees in my time, and one of the biggest headaches was the transportation problem. The expense is incredible. The cost of transporting students, some of whom live 30+ miles east of the school or 30+ miles south, at different times with the same buses, boggles the mind. The transportation department deserves an accolade.

Please notice the advance placement numbers and results at the high school for the past four years. The high percentage of students who passed and thus could skip some college courses speaks well for the academic stringency of Carmel High School.

Carmel Unified School District does provide a superior education, especially in view of the problems particular to the district. Still - as always - no one should forget that the ultimate responsibility for one's education rests with the student.

A Voice of Protest Against Flood District

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

This is an alarm bell for all residents of Carmel Valley and Cachagua. The Monterey County Water Resources Agency (MCWRA) has prepared a "Carmel Basin Flood Control Zone", costing property owners $325,000 a year, to improve the flood warning system and pay for various planning programs and "channel maintenance". Its proponents do not claim to prevent flooding on the Carmel River.

The Zone is divided into Class A properties within the floodplain and Class B properties outside the floodplain. It is called a Benefit Assessment District, but who gets the benefits? Class B properties, which will pay about two-thirds or $200,000 yearly, receive no benefit whatsoever. A troubling aspect of this scheme is that it will be imposed on us without a chance to vote, unless 25% of the area's voters have filed written protests. Since notices were sent only to property owners, many residents don't even know about it.

If you are a tenant, don't assume this is none of your business; the costs will eventually be added to your rent.

Write now to the MCWRA, Assessments, Box 930, Salinas, Ca. 93902 and demand a public vote on the Carmel Basin flood Control Zone. Your letter must include: complete address or Assessor's Parcel No., names of property owners, whether you are a registered voter within the Carmel Basin, your objection, your signature. Get your letter in well before the public hearing to be held at 2:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 16, 1996, at the County Courthouse in Salinas.

Joins Dilworth in Sniping at Pebble Beach

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Subject: Corporate enlightenment badly needed at PBC.

Congratulations to Ed Leeper and David Dilworth. They are to be commended for exposing Pebble Beach Company's exhibit, "Del Monte Forest Legacy: A Century of Stewardship", now on display at PG's Museum of Natural History. Many have not always agreed with this civic minded duo, but this time they are on target in calling the exhibit exactly what it is: a public relations ploy, timed to influence opinion on PBC's "Lot Development Program" as it comes before the County.

PBC's Mark Verbonich has chosen to bash Leeper and Dilworth in this newspaper and others. He defends the development company by claiming the exhibit is a "collaborative effort" with the Museum, which happened to "invite" PBC at this critical time. He also says the developer and its predecessors have a long relationship, dating to a gift of land 113 years ago and a $10,000 gift from PBC. Thank you, PBC, but why, then, did it call in this old debt at this time?

Mr. Verbonich may attack Leeper and Dilworth, but they are clearly not alone in their views. A public hearing was held last week before the Museum's board. Comments about the exhibit included: "self-serving", "blatant advertising", "unbalanced", "eco-porn", "making exaggerated claims", "pretty", "slick", and "tacky", referring to a list of charities supported by PBC and somehow is thought to be appropriate in a "natural history" exhibit. COMPUTER TALK

Val Healey

Part 18 - An introduction to computers at a naively simple level

In the last part we introduced the medium of information storage in computers: thousands, millions, or even billions of tiny magnetizable specs embedded in surfaces of wafer thin diskettes, or platters in hard drives. The floppy diskette (sometimes called floppy disk) is usually made of a circular, fairly stiff, plastic (mylar) film with embedded metal oxide particles that is enclosed in a square plastic protective case of about 1/8" thick. The film has attached at the center a small boss that protrudes through one side of the case and this is engaged and rotated by the drive. The case also has a small spring-loaded door, which is intended to keep out dust, that is moved aside by the drive to expose the film to the head for reads/writes. In 3.5" floppy drives the film is spun at a few hundred revolutions per minute (rpm), whereas for the hard drives the platters spin at typically 3000-6000 rpm. The head, which is mounted on an arm and swings back and forth across the surface, has either to read, i.e., tell, whether or not the spec is magnetized, or write, when it either magnetizes or demagnetizes the spec. In hard drives the head rides on a cushion of air, which has a thickness much less than the diameter of a human hair, so that exclusion of dust from these drives is imperative. A single spec of dust on a platter could displace the head and cause errors.

Now, in order to get a feel for information storage, we can relate to something which should be familiar to all - a typical 8.5" x 11" page of unformatted text in ASCII-8 characters. Usually such a page has about 3000 bytes or 8 x 3000 = 24,000 bits. If the page were formatted, these numbers could be multiplied by about 3 or 4 and we would then have about 10,000 bytes or 80,000 bits. If we want to have a few hundred pages then these numbers can get pretty big, so we had better use larger units. In the computer world a kilo is considered as 1024 (2 to the power 10 for you mathematical whizkids) but here we are not concerned with a couple of percent error so we take the kilo as it usually is in the metric world - 1000 - and this will make estimations much simpler. In this case our unformatted page is about 3 KB or 24 Kb. Note the B for bytes and b for bits. The formatted page would then be about 10 KB or 80 Kb. The next unit is a million bytes or a megabyte MB or megabits Mb. One thousand times this is called a gigabyte GB or gigabit Gb. Note that the K, M and G are sometimes written in lower case.

The 3.5" floppy disk we mentioned earlier can store about 1.44 MB = 1440 KB which would represent about 1440/10 = 144 formatted pages. A floppy drive today costs about $35, and a diskette about 25-50 cents. Only 3-4 years ago, a 100 MB hard disk was considered adequate for most users and cost several hundred dollars. Today one can buy a gigabyte one for around $200. One may well question the reason for a hard drive big enough to accommodate several books and, as I hope will become clear in another few months, the answer is: sound and graphics, both of which have a voracious appetite for space.

Since there can be several thousand million bits on a hard disk, it is essential to have a highly organized system of storage and retrieval. This is achieved by dividing each side of the floppy diskette, or hard drive platter, into concentric "tracks" and further dividing these tracks into "sectors" by drawing radial lines from the center to the outer track, which divide the tracks into equal size parts. Next time we will look at the "filing system" used to keep tabs on what is stored where.

reasonable people in the scientific, education, and environmental community, golfers, and citizens - young and not so youthful.

Questions remain. Will this corporate giant, with its foreign ownership amend the exhibit which has caused so much public consternation? But, perhaps the bigger question is whether they will change archaic corporate views in dealing with an enlightened public?

Lets Get The Water Board Issue on the Ballot

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Reprint of letter to Board of Directors of Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

On June 27, 1996 and pursuant to Rule 16 of the Meeting Rules of the District I asked that an agenda item be placed on the July 15 agenda asking the Board to consider placing on the November ballot the question, "Shall the Water Management District be disbanded effective June 30, 1997?"

Time constraints require that this item be acted upon prior to August 9, 1996, and absent a special meeting held sometime early in August, the July 15 date is the last opportunity for the matter to be considered.

The question before the Board is not whether each of us support disbandment of the district, rather whether we want to allow our constituents a voice in whether the district has outlived its usefulness and may no longer be needed. This matter keeps cropping up throughout the district, and the issue should be resolved once and for all.

As to who will assume some of the duties which the district presently is undertaking, the following is presented for those who desire to retain the district:

Mitigation Program:

1. Fish: The state Department of Fish and Game can reassume this duty supported by such volunteer organizations as the Steelhead Association.

2. River Management: This responsibility can revert to the County Water Resources Agency, formerly the Flood Control District. Funding for this can be achieved by a special benefit zone activated by the Water Resources Agency.

Augmenting the Water Supply:

This is a responsibility of Cal-Am Water Company as mandated by the Public Utilities Code Section 8201 and controlled by the state Public Utilities Commission.

Allocation of Water:

A skeleton force established by a Joint Powers Agency comprised of eight jurisdictions which make up the present district can carry on this activity. There isn't likely to be rampant water projects due to the difficulties experienced thus far by the district the last eighteen years and over $30 million spent, thus water allocation can be controlled by lack of supply. The District has never had the responsibility to control growth by water allocation, this is the responsibility and comes under the authority of the member jurisdictions, which must answer to their constituents for any suspected "rampant growth".

Whatever costs are attached to the above suggestions can be set out by county ordinances, the savings will be considerable by disbandment as opposed to special benefit zones established to fund any or all of the above duties.

Again, the matter before us is not whether we believe the district should be disbanded, but whether we would like to have an expression from our constituents. Placing the matter on the ballot does not in itself indicate board support for disbandment.

My recommendation is to place the measure on the November ballot, and those who disagree with disbandment will have the opportunity to campaign against it.

As a reminder, one year ago when this issue was raised, some board members said that the matter is premature. When will it not be premature?

Thank you for your kind attention.

Calls Dickey Cranky and Defends Teachers

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Every few months you get another letter from poor, cranky old Lawrence Dickey (July 4) and every few months I can't resist rising to the bait.

This time Larry seems to be a bit unclear about the actual process of teaching. How else to explain his accusation that what he calls the "children of the sixties" have "little interest in teaching fundamentals and imposing disciplines." A teacher of any decade will be happy to tell him that "fundamentals and disciplines" are essential in any learning setting and that both these principles are first learned at home.

A teacher of any decade would also be amused to hear his description of an academic career as "a secure and liberal way to make a living." Obviously he hasn't been around academe lately; positions are no longer either "secure" or "liberal", however he defines those terms. I wonder what Larry did for a living that makes him so jealous of the wonderful world of teaching.

I wonder what sort of "fundamentals and disciplines" he taught his children. I also wonder that planet he's been living on lately.

control funding. Armstrong responded that assessments will be levied throughout the Carmel River basin because all residents within the basin contribute to runoff and because all residents within the basin rely on the infrastructure such as roads, bridges and emergency services. Armstrong added that the zone "would not solve flood problems by any stretch of the imagination but would improve conditions."

Ron Pasquinelli, President of the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association, said "I am prepared to turn in 1,100 letters of protest representing 1,478 voters today. I suggest you could save yourself some time .. and put this to a vote." Pasquinelli said he had a thousand or so more legal protests being processed.

The zone must be put to a public vote if 25% of the voters within the zone who voted in the last election formally protest; approximately 2,000 people. Armstrong said that the MCWRA has received many phone calls and letters but only about 300 formal letters of protest.

Supervisor Judy Pennycook observed that, overall, parcels outside the 100 year flood plain would pay nearly twice that of those within it. Armstrong responded that there are only so many parcels inside the 100 year flood plain and they considered, "Reasonably how much burden can we put on those parcels in the flood plain relative to how much money has to be generated." Pennycook summarized that assessments will be made to collect the required amount of money and "the operative laying device is how much a parcel could bear", as opposed to the benefit received.

Darby Furst, Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) General Manager, said that the proposed flood prevention activities would not overlap with MPWMD projects which include habitat restoration and erosion control, but not flood control.

Seven people spoke against the zone citing concerns that a vote will not be held, that people outside the 100 year flood plain will not receive any benefit and that there really isn't anything the MCWRA can do to prevent a flood and that former channelization projects have actually exacerbated flooding. Four people spoke in support of the zone saying that everyone within the Carmel River basin contributes to the runoff which creates the flooding and everyone uses the bridges and roads which are affected in a flood.

Don Boston, active with the Carmel River Coalition, urged the board to approve the zone and said "You have to accept the fact that upstream development does increase the flow and does exacerbate flood problems. We don't have flood services, we haven't had any flood planning to speak of since development began. We need these services."

Steven Spreg of Cahagua said the perceived benefit of protecting a shared infrastructure did not apply in Cachagua because most of the roads are privately owned and maintained adding, "We don't want anything to do with the county."

Patricia Bernardi, Carmel riverfront property owner, said "Floods are normal, I assumed when I bought my property that there would be a chance that I would be flooded. Not that I enjoyed being evacuated last year and not that I am not sympathetic with all the people who did suffer but those of us who live along the river took that risk."

A public hearing to approve the assessment zone is currently scheduled for July 16 at 2:30 pm at the Board of Supervisors Chambers at the Courthouse in Salinas. Formal letters of protest should be submitted by that date, for more information call the Board of Supervisors at 755-5066.

The $326,000 in annual funds are to be spent as follows:

$245,000 river channel maintenance
$55,000 debt repayment*
$8,000 for an alert system.
$5,000 for flood control project planning including bank restoration projects and the proposed Lower Carmel River Flood Control Project.
$5,000 for permitting and environmental matters.
$4,000 for flood plain management and drainage planning.
$4,000 for emergency preparedness.

*For the first 5 years to repay funds loaned for 1995 flood related activities. The money was loaned with the understanding that it would be repaid from the eventual creation of a flood assessment zone.

Taxpayer's Group Will Fight Flood Assessments

The Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers' Association (MPTA) announced that it has submitted to the Board of Supervisors the first of over 2000 protests against the imposition of an assessment on property owners in the Carmel Valley River Basin. MPTA claims properties are being taxed without allowing those who were going to be assessed to vote on the issue.

The process called a "majority protest" requires either the owners of 25% of the land in the proposed assessment district to protest, or alternatively, a number of registered voters, registered to vote in the proposed district, equal to 25% of the number of voters who voted in the 1994 Gubernatorial election, to protest.

Ron Pasquinelli, MPTA president said, "The process established by the county is grossly unfair to the taxpayers. Rather than asking the owners approval it requires them to get organized and object in a timely manner to an attempt to raise the "taxes" on their property. They are not even called taxes. Technically they are called 'assessments' for the benefit of the property. But, many MPTA members in Carmel Valley questioned how doing flood control on the river benefits the people who are outside the 100 year flood plain and hundreds of feet above the river."

new and expanded uses, develop a water rationing plan, and rescind previous District ordinances that allow reinvestment of water credits. The Board will not impose any rationing plan, moratorium or rescind any ordinance at the July 15 meeting, but could direct District staff to develop ordinances or plans to be considered at a future meeting.

Also scheduled for Board discussion is a proposal by Director Lou Haddad to consider placing a measure on the November 5, 1996 ballot to disband the District effective June 30, 1997. If such a measure was on the ballot, it would be an advisory vote only because the District cannot be disbanded unless directed by an act of the State Legislature.
